

Project Relationship Management

The importance of building communication and trust through relationships in projects is well known, doing it is often another matter. This course offers a practical rigorous approach to developing and effectively managing relationships in projects.

Key Course Outcomes include:

- ✓ Have a process to manage relationships
- ✓ Understand the flaws and value adds in current approaches

About the course

This program has been developed from years of research and practical project experience – learn an approach that works.

Some content

- Using a planned approach
- Review current approaches - flaws – facts and fallacies
- Use a risk based approach
- Effective responsibility management
- Real practical relationship issue resolution – strategies that work

For the complete course details, contact us for full overview.